

Improving existing institutional frameworks, legislation and policy related to Emission Limit Values (ELV) for industrial effluents, industrial permitting and monitoring systems according to the IPPC principles and CP concepts

IPPC Seminar

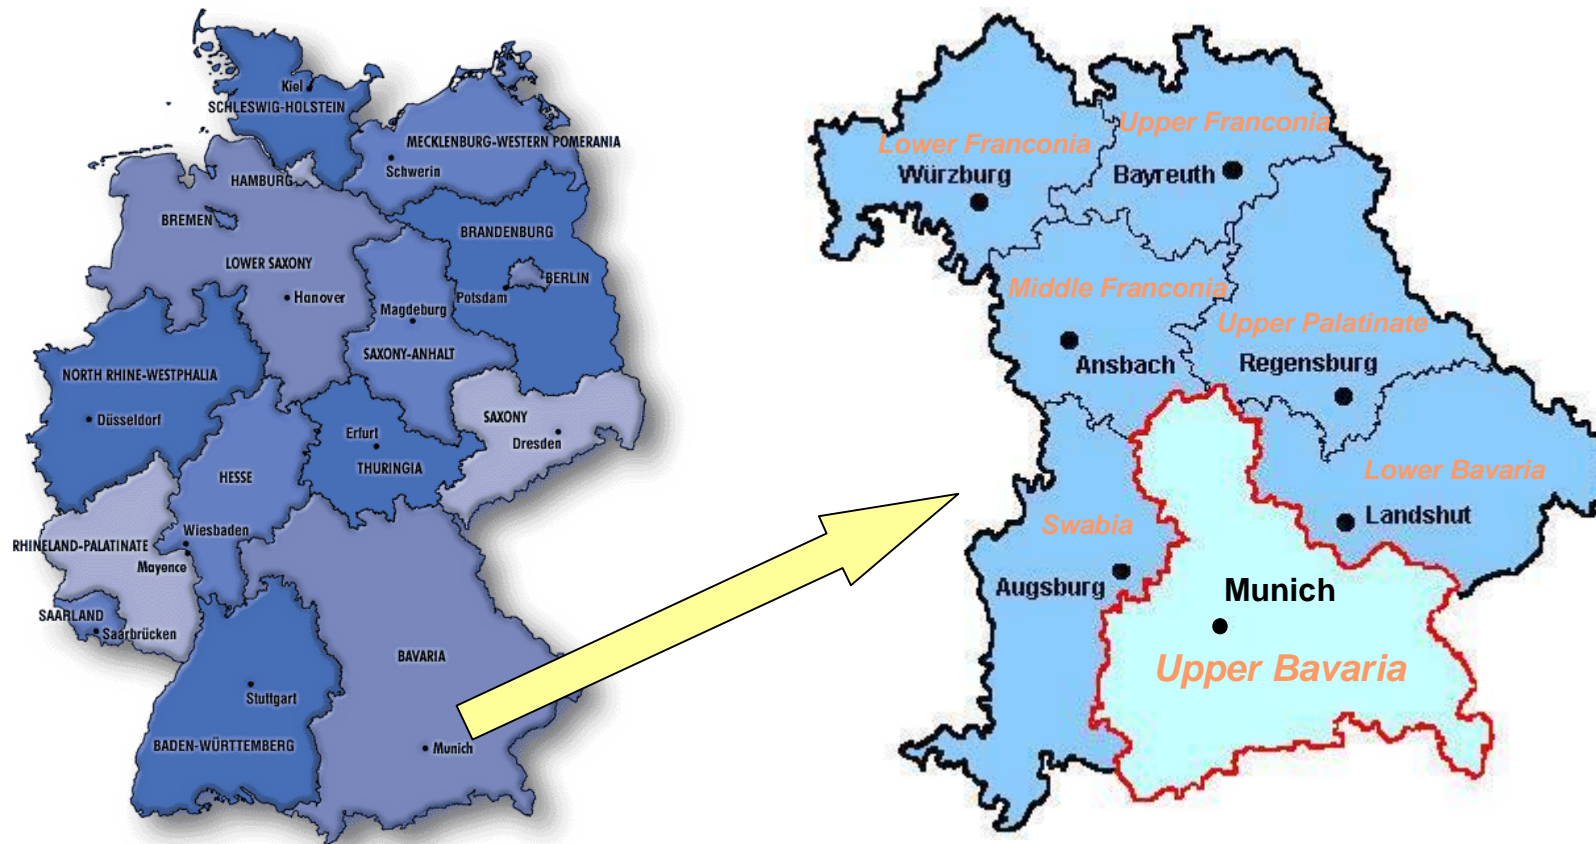

October 2nd □ 3rd 2011 Rammallah

Dipl.-Ing. Konrad Mair

Government of Upper Bavaria
Head of department Environmental Protection, Public Health and Customer Protection
Munich

Phone: 0049-89-2176-2355
e-mail1: konrad.mair@gmx.de e-mail2: konrad.mair@reg-ob.bayern.de

Germany: 16 Länder
Population: ca. 82 mio.

Bavaria: 7 districts
Population : ca. 12 mio. (ca. 15 %)
Upper Bavaria: 4 million inhabitants

Installations in Bavaria

IE (IPPC) permit: about 1257

Installations in Upper Bavaria

IE (IPPC) permit 391

The Government of Upper Bavaria and its Functions within the State Structure

The Free State of Bavaria is subdivided into seven administrative Districts. With its area of 17,529 km² and nearly 4 million inhabitants Upper Bavaria is the Federal Republic's largest administrative district in terms of territory and ranks third in terms of population.

Each administrative district of Bavaria is headed by a local Government constituting the median level in the three-tier Bavarian system of state administration. Like all other district Governments, the Government of Upper Bavaria is subordinate to the Bavarian state ministries. At the same time it supervises a number of district administration departments, specialised services and local institutes of Upper Bavaria.

The President of the administrative district's Government is the head of its public administration with a staff of nearly 1,300 employees, and is also the administrative principal of nearly 32,000 civil servants working in the Government's employ in 84 services and 1,275 schools.

The Government's main functions are:

- Co-ordination and consolidation,
- Supervision,
- Law protection and enforcement,
- Sponsorship.

Additionally, the Government is vested with various other powers, tasks and responsibilities.

Thank you very much for your attention!